

MEET THE ARTIST

MICHAEL NICHOLAS

Role: Malcolm in "The Full Monty"

Q: How long have you been performing?

A: I did my first show (Oklahoma!) while I was in high school.

Q: What has been your all-time favorite role?

A: I don't really have a favorite, but definitely have roles that I have loved; George in "She Loves Me", Linus in "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown", and Grantaire in "Les Miserables" were all wonderful experiences. Malcolm MacGregor in "The Full Monty" just might be topping that chart.

Q: Tell us about your character in "The Full Monty".

A: When you meet Malcolm he's kind of a mess. He's lonely, he's naive, his mother still dresses him... He goes from a lost little boy in a man's body to discovering where he fits in and being comfortable in his own skin.

Q: What is the best advice you can give to anyone interested in becoming an actor?

A: The same advice I would give to anyone: Do what you're passionate about. Study everything. Be open to change. Be prepared for rejection. And most importantly, use every possible opportunity to be creating something, even when you're not on a contract.

Q: When you are not on stage, where can you be found?

A: Spending time with my beautiful Kimberly and our darling daughter Harper, watching a ball game, relaxing on the golf course, getting to know the Pacific Northwest, eating good food, buying boots, and learning the language of a one-year-old.
